"While this was indeed a tough year for the field hockey bobcats, we had some incredible games that helped us grow as a team. Among the season's highlights was the 70 minute battle with NESCAC rival Colby that ended in an unfortunate 2-1 loss. The 2009 team's young talent will certainly make a profound statement in the NESCAC next fall." -Captain Morgan Maciewicz

"This fall was the strongest season we have had over the past few years; we significantly improved our level of play and earned a winning record of 16-9. Our team became more dynamic, consistent, and competitive with a strong group of returners and a group of talented first-years. We beat some of our rivals like Colby and Bowdoin and played competitive matches against some of the top NESCAC teams." -Captain Liz Leberman

"The first-years have added immense talent, depth, and character to an already dedicated group of women. We hit a couple of bumps with illnesses and injuries, but we continued to hold our own in a really competitive conference. This isn't the best we've done in a while, but we had Esther Kendall finish All-Region. All and all the team will continue to develop, despite the loss of a pretty big group of seniors."

The 2009-10 Men's Basketball season was filled with what we refer to as "Bobcat Pride." There were many unexpected challenges thrown our way but we used them as stepping-stones; approaching the barriers presented to us as an opportunity to rebut critics and prove ourselves. We exceeded every expectation. Beating our rival Amherst for the first time in nearly two decades, hosting a NESCAC playoff game, and ending our arch-rival Bowdoin's season were mere reflections of the character, spirit, and pride of our team. We definitely continued the sacred legacy of "Bobcat Pride".

"The women's indoor season's success was in large part due to theamazing success of our throwers. Vantiel Elizabeth Duncan continued tochurn out top-notch performances. She was joined by Laura Smith and Sara-Ellen Godek to give the team great depth and essential point-scoring abilities. A wealth of new freshmen joined the already successful and talented sprinters and mid-distance squad. Our team has continuedto grow and strengthen, with our high performance at ECAC's, as we came in third, tying our best performance there in a long time."-Captain Katie Bash

"This season was amazing. The team trained harder than ever and all the work paid off in the end. Almost everyone swam a lifetime best in at least one event. Some memorable moments were winning our first home meet against Wesleyan, the Men's 400 Freestyle relay beating U Maine, the close meets with Colby and Bowdion, and, of course, Training Trip. I could not have asked for a better final season to my swim career."

"This year the men swim team had a huge break through. We finish our season with a winning record of 6 wins and 5 losses. With the editions of a great freshmen class and a much improved veterans, we were able to put together one of the best swim team the college had seen in a long time. Our greatest accomplishment this year was to be able to not only claimed the CBB title by beating both Colby and Bowdoin but also the best college team in Maine as we overcame a DI program in University of Maine. Peter Caseres was extraordinary in organizing and training our team, which shows throughout the season and especially at our conference Championship" -Captain Peem Chatikavanij

"We had a great year with two athletes qualifying for NCAAs (Ben Manter and Alexander Heldman) and co-captain Ben Manter achieving All-American status in the slalom at nationals. Our young team had great finishes throughout the season in both the men and women's divisions. We had a young but talented team who competed well throughout the season. We also are looking forward to next season, as all of the team is returning to compete next season."

"Over the past four years I have had the privilege of being a member of a team that has evolved and adapted to consistently excel at the DI level. On the women's side, we had a break-through '09-'10 season placing in the top three on the Eastern circuit on five different occasions. A dedicated and hard-working men's team improved and will be a powerful force in years to come. The future is bright for this young team and the Bates Athletic Community will be hearing a lot about this group in the upcoming seasons. Ski on!"

"Bates Women's Squash had another successful year finishing 3rd at NESCACs and 11th at Nationals. First year Cheri-Ann Parris had a fantastic season beating many top players around the country along with a great personal showing at individual nationals at Trinity. With only Hannah and Whitney leaving this season, we expect great things for next season and seasons to come for the bobkittens. When it comes to some of those closer matches always remember...A bobcat always strikes back!" -Captain Whitney Roller

NCAA Womens Rowing Championships....2nd/7

"The Bates Women's Rowing team enjoyed another successful season, ranked asone of the top three Division III teams for the entirety of the spring season. Both the firstand second varsity boats placed 1st in all but one of their five pre-championship regattas. After these successes, the women earned their fourth straight bid to the 2010 NCAA Rowing Championships in Sacramento, CA. Bates was ranked 4th going into thechampionships, behind Williams, Ithaca, and Trinity. Both the first varsity boat's second place finish and the team's second place finish matched the all-time highest finish by any Bates crew at the NCAA Championships."

Men's Rowing

Head of the Charles.....15th/38

"While not quite as strong as last year, this past rowing season saw many successes. In the Fall, the Men's Varsity Eight finished in the top 15 in the collegiate 8+ event at the Head of the Charles Regatta. In the Spring, Bates held onto the President's Cup of the Colby, Bates, Bowdoin Regatta and finished 6th in New England. Everyone on the men's side definitely grew on an individual level. With dozens of personal records on the ergometer, it is clear that there is a very bright future for this team. Bates Rowing has by now established itself as a top crew in the New England division, and I have no doubt that the program is moving towards the highest distinction."

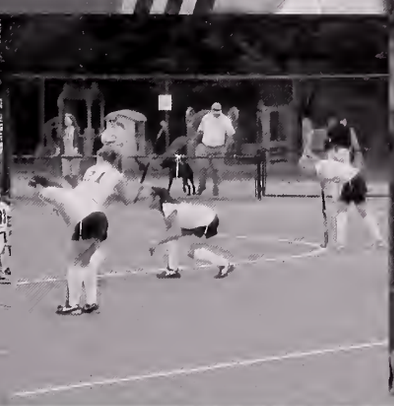
NCAA



Clubs

Amandla!

The purpose of Amandla! is to cultivate solidarity among students of African descent at Bates College. We are committed to providing a forum where one can express social, intellectual, political, and cultural concerns of students of African descent. It is our mission to promote global causes that directly affect people of the African Diaspora and foster a campus and local community understanding of the rich lives and cultures of people of African descent. Through organizing events and programs that raise cultural and political awareness of Black people on campus, Amandla! hopes to ignite racial tolerance and social change in our communities.

Anime Club

The Anime Club meets once a week on Sundays to watch episodes of Japanese anime series or movies. The meetings typically last for an hour to two hours and are a great way to learn about anime, meet new people, and take a study break. In the past, we've watched the now popular Kenshin series, Samurai X, and movies by director Hayao Miyazaki, among many other anime programs.

Bates Outing Club

The Bates Outing Club was founded in 1920 and is among the oldest collegiate outing clubs in the country and the first at a private college to include both men and women from the beginning. Every member of the Bates College community is technically a member of the club. Its administration is set up into officers, directors, and a Council composed of active members. The directors are largely responsible for the administrative aspects of the club while the officers run the outing activities. The organization offers year-round trips throughout New England for hiking, climbing, skiing, canoeing, surfing, kayaking and many more. Every year the club hosts activities including two Clambakes, Winter Carnival and a hike up Katahdin, each of which remain popular campus-wide events. The club has strong participation from every class year and remains one of the most popular clubs on campus.

Ballroom Society

The Bates Ballroom Society is an organization open to anyone who would like to learn how to dance. All levels of experience are welcome and no partner is necessary. The club focuses on smooth (waltz, tango and foxtrot) and rhythm (cha cha, rhumba and swing) style dances, and sponsors a beginner class once a week for which PE credit can be earned. Those who are interested in learning these dances at a more advanced level are invited to join the competition team, which practices two to three times a week and focuses on preparing students to compete at the inter-collegiate competitions.

Bates Buddies

Bates Buddies is a club that fosters the relationship between Bates and the Lewiston community. Pairs of Bates students volunteer weekly at a local elementary school during recess and lunch with a group of three to five children. For only one hour per week, Bates students act as mentors and role models to local first, second and third graders. Bates Buddies is a great way for students to get off campus and become engaged in the community in a fun way!

Bates Christian Fellowship

The purpose of BCF is to encourage and equip students to follow Jesus Christ as the Lord. We strive to grow in love for God and God's people of every ethnicity and culture, and to come to a deeper understanding of the Scriptures and of God's purposes in the world. We organize various small groups that usually meet weekly for Bible study, discussion of pertinent issues, or prayer. There are also weekly Wednesday meetings for a time of worship, sharing and teaching. Various social activities are held throughout the year for relationship and community building, and oftentimes just for fun Our activities are always open to the entire Bates Community. BCF is associated with InterVarsity Christian Fellowship.

Bates Emergency Medical Services

Bates EMS is a Main Licencesed EMS service that provides emergency care to the Bates College community. All the members are volunteers that have completed the Emergency Medical Technician course and is entirely student run. Bates EMTs volunteer their time to be on call and are ready to respond to any campus emergency 24 hours a day, seven days a week. While on call, EMTs carry radios to communicate with other crew members and Bates Security. Bates EMS not only provides medical care to those in need, but offer lectures and training sessions to keep their EMT skills proficient. They also sponsor blood drives for the college and hold information sessions in residencies at the beginning of the year to give information about their service and campus safety.

Bates Energy Action Movement

The Bates Energy Action Movement is dedicated to taking direct action to fight anthropogenic global climate change through political participation, advocacy and outreach. BEAM is part of the international youth climate movement and regularly engages in nation-wide and global campaigns to promote progressive climate legislation, climate justice, the development of renewable energy sources and the growth of green jobs. There is no time to wait for someone else to solve this problem - the responsibility is ours and we are rising to the challenge!

Bates Student Government

The Bates College Student Government is the student government of Bates College. It consists of two branches: the Executive Council (EC) and the Representative Assembly (RA). At weekly public meetings, the BCSG acts as representatives of the student body, voicing concerns and support, engaging in advocacy, and articulating student interests. This continues outside the weekly meetings through the work of nearly forty committees. These committees determine policies in areas ranging from academics to parking, discipline to residential life, and much more. The BCSG administers over $350,000 in Student Activities funds each year, allocating the money amongst various student clubs and organizations. Officers include: Ally Mandra (President), Meredith Greenberg (Representative Assembly Chair), Mikey Pasek (Parliamentarian), Cosmin Ghita (Vice President of Student Committees), Sangita Murali (Vice President of Student Clubs), and Hunter Archibald (Treasurer).

Bates College Television

Bates College Television (BCTV) is a product of the students at Bates. It is made up of liberal arts talents- from all sorts of creative, intellectual and informative individuals. We've created several news broadcasts with special features; including the "behind the scenes" of the new commons dinning hall and an interview with Christine Schwartz, Director of Dinning Services, an on site look at the puddle jump with a BCTV correspondent actually jumping in herself, and other fun news stories. In addition we've created short highlight reels on local businesses' Bates sports teams, Bates departments and upcoming performances. One of our most popular shows is "Bates Cribs". This past year we've begun hosting events such as "Premiers" where we show off some of our programming. We want to create fun TV shows that demonstrate the life of the students here at Bates and show off our achievements as a campus.

Bates Quimby Debate Council

Debate and Bates are practically synonymous, when it comes to the Bates Quinby Debate Council. Always among the top debating schools in the nation, Bates is currently one of the top 25 teams in the world. In past years, we have hosted the North Americans Championships, featuring the top debaters from Canada and the U.S, along with other prestigious events. Debate is a great way to develop your mind, compete successfully against the top schools in the country, travel around the country and the world, and have a lot of fun. No prior experience is necessary; some of our best debaters started while at Bates. Come join us!

Chase Hall Committee

The Chase Hall Committee is the primary, student run, programming board on campus. Working with a traditionally large budget, the club plans, publicizes, and runs a variety of events over the course of the year and into Short Term. Events normally include a major music concert, a comedy series, the Halloween and 80's Dance, Big Prize BINGO, Drop Everything and Play (a free music and activities event during short term), the coordination of the nation's 2nd oldest Winter Carnival, and other various fun, diverse acts. This is a great way to interact with the student body, learn event planning and marketing skills, as well as get your voice heard in the booking of campus entertainment.

Christian Science Organization

The Bates Christian Science Organization is a group dedicated to supporting and pro-actively encouraging a spiritually uplifted campus and community. We seek to serve as a spiritual resource for all and create a comfortable forum for dialogue on spirituality and current issues through meetings and lectures. Our weekly meetings include readings and the sharing of experiences and ideas about how the challenges of campus life and beyond can be met through prayer and spirituality. We warmly welcome all genuinely interested students, faculty, and staff.

Competitive Ski Team

The Competitive Ski Team is the fastest club on campus! Founded in 2005 as an alternative to the D-1 racing team on campus, the club is open to both Alpine and Nordic racers of all levels and all experience. The club offers training and instruction along with racing throughout the Winter against other great colleges within the US Collegiate Ski and Snowboard Association (USCSA), including Bowdoin and University of Maine Farmington. The Ski team is a great opportunity for former ski racers who want to continue in college or for those who have never tried the sport before. The 2009-2010 season was another successful winter as the club consistently finished within the top three places for both Alpine and Nordic, with a particularly strong showing from the Women's Alpine team. Officers include: Lindsay Thomson (President), Kerry Gross (VP), Ben Motley (Treasurer), Tessa Pals (Secretary), and Will Brunnquel (Nordic Liaison)

Crosstones

The Bates College Crosstones is a co-ed a cappella group comprised of various members of the Bates Community. Each member contributes his or her unique personality, musical vision, and creative angles to the group. The Crosstones have always been known for its down-to-earth nature, humor, and energy, which is manifested in its songs. The Crosstones are big believers in branching out to the community, having sung at nursing homes, local middle school and high school benefits and for the local television stations. They have also traveled outside of Maine to share their sound with different audiences. They're music selection ranges from rom the light classic rock of Billy Joel's "Lullaby" to the upbeat energy of The Jackson Five's "I Want You Back" to the modern pop of Justin Timberlake's "Cry Me a River."

Deansmen

The Bates College Deansmen are the college's oldest all-male a cappella group. Sounding tight and looking good in tuxedos is what we do. The Deansmen sing songs by artists such as Maroon 5, Stevie Wonder, Steely Dan, The Blind Boys of Alabama, Kool & The Gang, and The Who, all of which have been arranged for a cappella by current members of The Deansmen, or alumni. Members include Daniel Rosenzweig '10 (President), Eddie Arsnow '10 (Music Director), Grayson Board '11, Alex Barton '12, Charlie Emple '12, Segundo Guerrero '12 (Business Manager), Liam Zaajier '12, Max Arnell '13, Conor Maginn '13, Fritz Manson '13, Hank Woolley '13.

Environmental Coalition

The Environmental Coalition deals with local, national and international issues in a relaxed setting. We organize recycling drives on campus, spread environmental awareness , have organic cookouts and take trips to local sights. It is important to note that EC is run by its members, and this means that new issues are always welcome.

Equestrian Team

The Bates Equestrian Team successfully competed in the Intercollegiate Horse Show Association (IHSA) for shows in the surrounding New England region for yet another year, coming home with many blue ribbons. This year, the number of team members doubled with the incoming freshman class. During the fall season, the team traveled to many IHSA sponsored shows, including University of New Hampshire, where Eleanor Anaclerio qualified to compete in the high point rider ride-off. This spring, Bates had the exciting opportunity to host its very first IHSA show at Chez Cheveaux Equestrian center, where the team practices under trainer, Karen Lappas. Twelve IHSA teams attended the show, which proved to be a success for all teams and riders involved, as hosting a second annual Bates show is promising for next spring.

Filmboard

Every weekend the Filmboard presents a newly released, Pre-DVD feature film to the Bates Community. If people aren't able to see the movie in the theater, the Bates Filmboard gives them the opportunity to see because it is released on DVD. Special programing includes independent films, drive-in movies, and movie poster raffles. We provide consistent non-alcoholic weekend entertainment to the entire campus for only one dollar. Members help select and show films. The filboard is led by Anna Le '10 (treasurer) Mike Thomas '11 and Stephanie Houle '10 (president).

Freewill Folk Society

Ever been to a contradance? Play fiddle, guitar, bagpipes, bones, accordion or banjo? Listen to folk, Celtic, bluegrass, or international music? The Freewill Folk Society is for you. Freewill Folk Society coordinates monthly contradances and other folk events on campus, as well as helping students attend off campus folk events. Other events the Freewill Folk Society organizes include folk music concerts and jams sessions.

Golf Association

The Golf Association strives to bring the Bates Golf community together by working with local golf clubs to provide an affordable spring golf pass. The campus-wide Association is usually headed by active varsity golfers who help with the passes and raise awareness that golfing opportunities are available for the student body. The association allows non-varsity golfers to continue their love for golf through providing information on local courses.

Gospelaires

The mission of Gospelairs is to sing praises unto the Lord and fully rejoice in it. We feel that our mission will bring hope, positivity, respect, optimism and, most importantly, love for our fellow brothers & sisters through the songs and its' messages; not only within the Bates college community, but throughout the greater Maine community and beyond. Anyone can join! No matter the age, color, or background, our goal is to also spread light on a style of praise music that is not is not generally practiced here at Bates; Gospel Music! Though widely accepted as a tradionally African-American musical style, our organization will provide a mutually supportive and positive learning environment in which every member has the opportunity to develop and practice an art form which, in turn, will foster self-confidence and give an understanding and appreciation for other cultures and their musical background. ONE GOAL, ONE PASSION, ONE VOICE ... Bates Gospel Choir

Helicase

The overall mission of Helicase is to provide support, unity, and inspiration for the exploration of biology both inside and outside of the classroom. We enhance communication between students and the department by coordinating seminar and discussions, as well as functioning as an official liaison. Helicase provides guidance to students about which natural science major will satsify their interests best and which courses regardless of their major, would be applicable. Through fieldtrips and other activities we expose students to the resources that surround them in the Bates and greater Maine community, in the hopes of encouraging them to apply these experiences to other work.

Hillel

Bates Hillel is an entirely student-run club designed for Jewish students and others interested in Judaism. Hillel offers weekly Shabbat dinner and services as well as special programs to celebrate all major Jewish Holidays.

Men's Hockey Club

The Men's Hockey Club team is open to all students, the men's and women's ice hockey teams practice five days a week and play around 20 games a season, extending from November to February. The team is a member of the American Collegiate Hockey Association (ACHA), which is the largest and most competitive club hockey organization in the nation and offers an annual national tournament for top qualifying teams. The club play on campus at Underhill Arena and travel throughout the northeast competing against other colleges and universities within the league and participate in regional playoffs. The team is student run but are led on-ice by experienced coaches. The eam is led by Tom LeBlonde, who played collegiate hockey and is now a history teacher at Lewiston High School.

International Club

The International Club brings together Bates students from all around the world. Its purpose is to provide great events that can be enjoyed both by students from abroad as well as students from the US. The major events include an International Dinner, two talent shows called "Coffeehouse", an International Fair and Dinner, and a dance party called "Club 360°". The club officers are pictured in the bottom picture: Umar Khan (Treasurer), Sophy Min (Co-President), Shachi Phene (Activities Coordinator), Nawshaba Nawreen (Secretary), Giang Nguyen (Activities Coordinator), Mustafa Basij-Rasikh (Co-President). Not Pictured: Shervin Chambers (Publicity Director).

Latinos Unidos

Latinos Unidos is an organization that seeks to give the Latino Students of Bates College with the opportunities needed to embrace their culture while continuing to learn about the cultures around them. Our main goal is to enlighten the Bates community about the beauty and richness of countries in, South America, Central America and the Caribbean.

Men's Lacrosse Club

The Bates Men's Club Lacrosse team has greatly increased in size and popularity since its first season in 2006. Club Lacrosse is a great option for anyone interested in experiencing the game of lacrosse at a college level regardless of skill or experience. Competition consists mostly of other schools throughout New England.

Merimanders

The Merimanders is the only female a capella group at Bates. The group has been around since 1958, and sings a variety of musical genres, including oldies and current hits. We enjoy performing on campus, in many local and regional community service settings, and at other colleges. In the 2009-2010 year, the Merimanders had 15 members from all four years. Tryouts are held at the beginning of the year

Muchahada Association

Mushahada Association is an association of the Muslim students and students interested in the Islamic faith at Bates. Mushahada is an Arabic word and means vision. The club aims at providing appropriate space for religious observances, and increasing awareness of Islam as a religion on the college campus through organizing a diverse range of activities, which also act as a platform for interaction between Muslim students on the campus and the college community as a whole.

Robinson Players

The Robinson Players is the only student-run theater group on campus and one of the oldest clubs at Bates. The Rob Players are active in the Bates and Lewiston-Auburn communities, putting on full length and one act plays, children's shows, musicals and other events that are free and open to the public. Our group gives student performers, directors and designers of any experience or background a chance to hone their skills in a supportive and fun environment.

Seed

Seed Magazine, Bates' literary magazine is a provocative, inspiring, and visually stimulating student run publication that features prose, poetry, photography, painting, and drawing by Bates students. Distributed once a semester Seed works to expose the artistic and eclectic talents of the Bates College student body. Every member of the Bates community is encouraged to submit different types of work.

Strange Bedfellows

The STRANGE BEDFELLOWS is the one and only improvisational comedy group at Bates. They perform both short-form as well as long-form improv and continually explore and experiment with different types of long-form improv structures such as the Harold, the Ascat, and the BAT, a show that is performed entirely in the dark! The Bedfellows perform biweekly at different venues all over campus as well as at venues in Lewiston such as The Blake Street Towers retirement home. They also perform at other colleges such as Skidmore College for the annual National College Comedy Festival that Skidmore hosts every year. The Bedfellows bring professional improv and sketch comedy groups to Bates, who in the past, have included The Upright Citizens Brigade Touring Company and The Late Night Players. The Bates community always eagerly anticipates the annual Bedfellow Holiday Show because it is the last show of first semester and it is the only scripted show that the Bedfellows write and rehearse prior to performing. The main goal of The Strange Bedfellows is to bring laughter to the Bates community and the surrounding areas of Lewiston and Auburn using the increasingly popular art form of improvisational comedy as a tool and a medium.

The Student

Since 1875, the Student has been Bates College's student-run newspaper. Once a week, while school is in session, a paper is published with sections including news, forum/opinion, sports, and arts & living. We are constantly seeking talented writers, editors, cartoonists, layout designers, web designers, and business managers. Visit www.batesstudent.com to see an on-line version of our publication and keep up with Bates news.

Students for Peace and Justice in Palestine

Students for Peace and Justice in Palestine is a club at Bates College that consists of students interested in the Palestine/Israel conflict. The members believe that the Palestinian narrative is not understood in the United States; thus, many injustices against Palestinians occur without notice. Therefore, it is the goal of this club to present the Palestinian narrative to Bates through speakers, movies, forums, and dialogs. This also entails political activism and active participation in campus organization and publications by the members to bring awareness of the Israeli's and Palestinians working for peace. We believe that understanding the Palestinian narrative is vital for a lasting peace process in the Middle East. As we educate more Americans about Palestinians then, as a nation, we can take the appropriate steps towards a sustainable and just peace.

Takenote

Takenote is one of the two co-ed a cappella groups on campus and the newest a cappella group on campus. We sing a variety of songs from wide spectrum of genres, from classic tunes like "Eleanor Rigby" by the Beatles to modern day hits like Maino's "All the Above". We love to perform and do so at every chance we get, whether it be at a small, intimate concert, a campus wide a cappella jam, or an event in the LA community. The a ccupella group consists of Emily Staszak '10, Pat Carroll '11, Amanda Goss '13, Chris Chiappetti '13, Swe Naing '12, Kate Fitzgerald '10, Hank Geng '13, Allegra Scharff '11, Shannon Walsh '12, Severn Patolo '12, Kate Fetrow '13, Catherine Tuttle '13, Thomas Koshy '13, and Molly Mylius '11.

Men's Volleyball

The Bates Men's Club Volleyball team is a competitive team, which competes within the NECVL league. There are no coaches so Bates students run the team. The team roster includes, Julian 'Bene; Ramirez, Paul Cocchiaro, Eric Brown, Nate Biagetti, Elise Edmonson, Carver Low, Antonio Lewis, Noah Cohn.

Men's Water Polo

The Bates Mens' Water Polo Team was much improved in their 2009 season. It may not be reflected in what appears to be a poor regular season record in 3-5 which tied them for fourth in the North Atlantic Division, but many of those games were decided by a few goals frequently going into overtime with misfortune seemingly always falling the clubs way. However, its leading scorers Jimmy Miller '12 and Mike Hanley '13 were able out gun their opponents and lead the team to a third place finish in the championship tournament. This was a major accomplishment for the club as they played the season with only ten athletes, a significantly smaller squad than all of their North Atlantic counter parts. With the team's roster only filled with under-classmen all under the age of twenty there is much potential for the club looking to next season.

The Yearbook (Mirror)

If you have yearbook experience, if you have no yearbook experience, if you like to write, take photos, or design, we think we have the place for you! The Mirror awaits your ideas. Even the least experienced person can make major contributions. We capture fragments of your wonderful Bates experience. Be part of the Bates history by joining the Mirror. Stop in and see us in Chase Hall, Room 215, or email us.

"A last minute decision that would set the tone of living overseas led to several friends and I traveling to Lisbon, Portugal. At the end of the first evening there, we stopped to enjoy the cool breeze blowing in across the water. I snapped this photo of the sunset and got lucky enough to catch a bird enjoying the same view."

Fiji

"Studying abroad in the Fiji Islands was above and beyond a tropical vacation. Traveling among islands, staying in remote villages, and snorkeling in coral reefs are only a few highlights of the SIT program entitled Multi-Culturalism and Social Change. This photo was taken during an excursion to the northern-most Fijian island, Taveuni, at a coastal preserve site. Our small group spent the day at this location enjoying the beach, taking in the view across the Pacific Ocean, snorkeling among brilliantly colored fish, and jumping off cliffs at nearby waterfalls."

Commencement 2010 Remarks
By: Jane Pauley

"We like to believe that we really do know the broadcast journalists who tell us stories. Like some of you here, I often talk back to my news reporters. Thus, many of us here today consider Jane Pauley an acquaintance, if not something of a friend."

-Associatie Professor of Rhetoric Stephanie Kelley-Romano

'd like to pick up where a wise thinker ended off. One word that I hope you haven't forgotten: Sunscreen guess I've been fairly successful being Jane Pauley. But I wish I had enjoyed it more. I wish I had worried less about how more successful I might have been if I had been a little more like Barbara Walter. Or Diane Sawyer, Katie Couric. I'm always being compared to the best of the best at something or other that they happened to do the best. But, of course, it was mostly me doing the comparing.

was oddly relieved to read in a biography of Mark Twain that he suffered comparisons too. As the story went, Twain was having an extended house guest of the writer Bret Harte. Twain was aware that Harte had a deadline to meet. He knows that Harte Is deeply in debt and badly needs the money.

Twain knows this because Harte owes money to Mark Twain, who also badly needs the money. And yet, instead of getting to work, Twain watches his guest dine and drink until 1 o'clock in the morning, at which point Mark Twain retired and Harte, finally, gets to work, taking more drink with him. But at 9 a.m. Twain wakes to find his houseguest sober and done. He's written the story, and one of the best he would ever write. How could he do that so effortlessly?

Well we know that Samuel Clemens, aka Mark Twain, produced a few masterpieces of his own but he would have had to work at it for weeks. Twain was particularly impressed that Harte could work best under pressure. Well, chances are that Bret had been thinking of that story for a long time. The characters, the elements, marinating in his brain consciously or unconsciously. Getting it on paper at last only appeared spontaneous. Plus, he may have required crushing pressure to leverage open that creative door. But apparently, Mark Twain never got over it.

Meanwhile, as we're all measuring ourselves against someone else, we're not thinking about the things that we do pretty well. This was a story told to Bill Moyers by an artist who was a young man, lucky to have been discovered by a renowned editor who saw the talent beneath his rough sketches. She encouraged him to write a children's picture book. He proposed the title, Where the Wild Horses Are.

But soon he made a terrible discovery: He could not draw horses. Now the editor might have said, "Go practice. How hard are horses?" Instead the editor said, "Think about what you can draw." So he thought and the images that came to him were of his immigrant relatives, the people in his childhood who dressed funny and had terrible teeth and said things like, "I could just eat you up!" Instead of horses he used these boyhood memories for inspiration for the drawings that no doubt inspired you as children: Where the Wild Things Are Maurice Sendak.

How often we get hung up on what we can't do. Think about what you can. And if you can't think of anything, keep thinking. I'll leave you with something else to think about. I saw this newspaper headline: "Inspiration is everywhere. But you have to be looking."

Class of 2010: Congratulations, and may you find inspiration everywhere you look.

Commencement 2010 Remarks
By: Rennie Harris

"There are phenomena that are unimaginable until they happen so radically do they ask us to reconceive our ideas of what is possible. Rennie Harris is an artist whose work has done this, demonstrating that the realms of the physical and the metaphysical exist in deep conversation. It has been Harris's great achievement to allow us to see that the world is knitted in the most unexpected and profound ways." -Trustee Geraldine FitzGerald '75

Today, I would like to share with you a few insights that hip-hop has taught me that I hope will help you at this next phase of your journey.

Today is an important time for both of us; for all of us.

I'm a big believer in seizing the moment and understanding that the moment is only real. Nothing else is real. This podium, this conversation that we're having is real. It's tangible. We can touch it. Everything before we can't touch anymore. It's a memory. It's fading.

In dealing with the moment I realized that I was shaping my reality and setting up a series of moments for the rest of my life. In doing that, I realized that we're often taught structure as a guideline. I realize that structure is not a guideline we are able to able to fall off the path and get back on.

One of the other insights that came to me was that persistency and consistency win out. As long as I'm persistent and consistent, I will be successful.

When I was about 26 or 27, for some strange reason I started to think about my life a little bit. I started to ask myself, what I want to do when I grow up. Everyone was asking me that since I was 8 or 9, so I thought I would ask myself. I knew I wanted to provide for my family. I wanted to be successful at whatever I did.

So I created this little list: three columns. One was B.S. The other was P.M. And the other was C.M.

At the end of the day I would log down all of the things that I did that day. I talked to my brother about the Eagles and why they can't win the Super Bowl. That was B.S.; I put it in the B.S. column. I talked to a friend about a potential project for a play; that was in the P.M. column for "Potential Money." We got the grant for this play, and it moved over to the C.M. column: "Confirmed Money."

As you can imagine, my B.S. column was about two pages long and I had maybe one or two things in the P.M. and C.M. columns. Eventually after logging this for two months, I started to see that the B.S. column started to shrink and the other two columns were full. This kept me on track with what I was doing and where I wanted to go. I made that decision to do it. I made a commitment, a conscious decision to say, "This is what I wanted to do." Finally.

The other insight I would like to say, is more or less based on the three laws of hip-hop: individuality, creativity and innovation. Now that I've made my column, I'm having a sense of identity. I know who I am. I'm pushed or inspired to be creative and to think outside of the box. Not accept the norm. So, if I was dancing I can't flip anymore but let's say if I had to do four flips, back handsprings. I'd do six or seven, just to be outside of the box. Instead of wearing my pants on the right side, I turned them inside-out. And today for my hip-hoppers, I put my hat to the side, just so that I could be creative and have a sense of individuality.

This helped me on my journey. The last thing I want to give you insight on is the most important and my favorite. Movement is the last manifestation of your reality. Movement is the last manifestation of your reality. What you do is who you are. Not what you say. You know a person loves you because what they do for you and how they consider you. If you are a person who is always late, acknowledge that you are always late and move forward. Always remember that movement is the last manifestation of your reality. Take action. Define your reality.

And as you move on after today, the last thing I'm going to ask you to remember is to remember who you are as spirits on this planet and why you came here. Why you came here to have this experience. You came here to understand love on many, many levels. Your family, your immediate love; your spouses, your friends, the people that you meet, the human race. This is the reason we are here.

And in understanding that, I ask you, as you go out and begin to change the world, to always remember when you're looking down at someone, when you find yourself looking down, make sure that your hand is reached out to help them up. This is the only time you should look down at anyone is while you're pulling them up.

Remember individuality, creativity, innovation; remember who you are a spirits on this planet; remember to always pull the next man or women up; and most of all remember to be true to yourself, and that you are the only person that has the answer. No one else has the answer. It is within you. I thank you, and I wish you wealth, health, and knowledge of self.

By: James J. McCarthy

"Mark Twain ended his famous essay about the "dazzling uncertainty" of New England weather with this sentence: "One cannot make the words too strong." Faced with the dazzling reality and epic challenge of global climate change, researcher and public intellectual James McCarthy has chosen bold and strong language to communicate the gravity of his and other researchers' findings."
-Trustee Mary Henderson Pressman '78, P'10

In Mike Nichols' 1967 film, The Graduate, Dustin Hoffman's character, Benjamin Braddock, has just graduated from a small New England college, and his parents throw him a party at their Los Angeles home. Mr. McGuire, a friend of Ben's father, takes Ben aside. The conversation ensues:

Mr. McGuire: I just want to say one word, just one word.
Ben: Yes, sir.
Mr. McGuire: Are you listening?
Ben: Yes I am.
Mr. McGuire: Plastics.

Now, Bates College, Class of 2010, my one word to you, just one word: "Boundaries."

I'll be some of you thought I would be talking about the ocean or climate, subjects dear to my heart. But I was given five minutes and it would take me an hour to talk about the oceans or climate. Besides, the oceans and climate are all about boundaries.

So, unlike Mr. McGuire, Mr. McCarthy will now elaborate, with the help of a poem. "Mending Wall," written in 1915 by Robert Frost, truly New England's poet and a Bates honorary degree recipient in 1936, causes I to reflect on boundaries. The poet's neighbor says, "Good fences make good neighbors." The poet continues:
Spring is the mischief in me, and I wonder
If I could put a notion in his head:
"Why do they make good neighbors? Isn't it
Where there are cows?
But here there are no cows.
Before I built a wall I'd ask to know
What I was walling in or walling out,
And to whom I was like to give offence.
Something there is that doesn't love a wall,
That wants it down."

So how do we view a wall or a boundary? Is it a border or a limit which bounds or restricts our thoughts and travels? Is it an edge or a margin or periphery, which is perhaps more neutral but still uninviting? Or is it a frontier which is inviting, challenging and full of opportunity.

I invite you to reflect for a moment across the blur of these past four years of your experiences at Bates upon the boundaries you have discovered, explored because you perceive them as inviting, challenging and full of opportunity. In a classroom for sure, but also in your day-to-day interactions with fellow students and your extracurricular pursuits and in moments of quiet contemplation on this beautiful campus.

For some of you this was the discovery that you could excel in an area of study or performance, or thoroughly enjoy some frivolous passion that seemed somehow beyond what you could have imagined possible or even possibly interesting.

For some of you, this was the opportunity to live, to truly live, in a community that expanded your sense of the human family, from one of parents, children, siblings and cousins, which intimately share blood, culture and beliefs, to one that shares blood more distantly and expresses a range of cultures and beliefs that are sometimes contrasting or even contradictory.

In the "Mending Wall," Frost talks about replacing boulders that have fallen from the wall:

We have to use a spell to make them balance:
'Stay where you are until our backs are turned!"

Balancing on the boundary can be some of the most exciting territory of all. It is the space that people who think of themselves as daring often rush across. But lingering there on the boundary can be especially rewarding. These balanced moments can allow one to grow in understanding of the flow that moves in each direction across the boundary. Only by pausing at the boundary can you understand that the flow in each direction truly has in common with the other, and from this emerges a wonderful gift: New understanding and appreciation of whole worlds of ideas that appear to stand apart, and this can be an extraordinary opportunity for creativity.

My wish for you as you go forward to carve your future and make your mark, is that you will never be daunted by boundaries, that you will find them to be a source of life-enriching discovery.

Savor your moments on the boundaries. Seek the mending-wall spell that allows you the gift of balance. Work to prove that all of us can be even better neighbors without fences as you, Bates Class of 2010, commence to apply yourselves to the problems that will define your generation.

So, returning to the dialog between Mr. McGuire and Ben:
Mr. McGuire: Plastics.
Ben: Exactly how do you mean?
Mr. McGuire: There is a great future in plastics. Think about it. Will you think about it?

Ben: Yes, I will.

Mr. McGuire: Shhh. Enough said. That's a deal.

Boundaries! Congratulations Class of 2010.

Commencement 2010 Remarks
By: Teresa K. Woodruff

"Imagine the despair of a young woman whose fertility might be compromised as a result of cancer treatments. Next, imagine her response when she learns of a promising new technique, described by Dr. Woodruff just a few weeks ago during the annual meeting of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, for preserving ovarian tissue to safeguard the future fertility even of the youngest cancer survivors. The promise offered to this woman to so many women is a remarkable one. And this promise captures the fragile yet universally powerful idea that drives Dr. Woodruff's work. It is called "hope.""
-Trustee Sarah Risley Pearson '75

My co-honorary degree recipients and I represent the kinds of people that you can become, with stories of accomplishments, challenges, opportunities, perseverance, optimism and sometimes luck that are the ingredients of the future that each of you will face.

I look forward to the world that you will create after you leave Bates and strike out on your own pathways of discovery. Congratulations to all of you.

I am a scientist and my field of study is reproductive science, and, in particular, providing fertility options for young people facing a sterilizing cancer treatment. This field provides perhaps a short parable that may be illustrative to each of you on this day, as you move into that great future that you will create.

Nearly 40 years ago, this nation set out on a mission to study cancer and develop new treatments that would diagnose the disease earlier, treat the cancer more aggressively, and ensure that a cancer diagnosis was not an immediate death sentence. The aggressive war on cancer has not resulted in a total cure but has resulted in over 10 million Americans alive today who had a cancer and survived their disease. There are likely many cancer survivors with us today

Ten percent of cancer patients are younger than 45 years old and within the age range, like you, who are still planning or in fact building their families. The good news for these people is that there are new technologies that are providing options at the time of diagnosis to prevent sterility by protecting gametes before treatment. I've have the good fortune to be part of this new area of work and coined the term "oncofertility" to ensure that oncologists and fertility specialists both see themselves as parts of the solution to the problem.

The story of oncofertility is personalized medicine as its best; it is a story of hope and renewal, which is the expectation we all have of research and medicine.

To create this field, we require three ingredients, which I think can be used by each of us as we face the challenges of our collective future.

First, create your opportunities. There's a great dialog in Toy Story II during which Woody asks Cowboy why he's been left on the shelf for so many years. Cowboy replies with great sputtering, "Three words, Woody. Sputnik." Forget the irony that Woody and Cowboy are, well, cowboys, and Sputnik is one word and at most two syllables. But what Cowboy was recounting is a worry that we sometimes have: that things change so quickly that we will become irrelevant as soon as the next Buzz Lightyear or Class of 2011 makes the scene.

Opportunities exist even in an austere economic climate, and with your Bates education, the methods and decision tools that you've honed over the past four years, you are ready to create the modern-day Sputnik, the new way to communicate, new energy solutions or the next medical breakthrough.

Oncofertility was created to meet the urgent unmet need of 140,000 young people with cancer. We identified the need then worked tirelessly to create our opportunity. You will do the same.

Secondly, teams accelerate the pace of work. Humans are geared toward teamwork. Our families are our first experience with teamwork, and many of you are here today with your original team. The same will be true as you forge the path ahead of you. In our field we've created a team of basic and clinical scientists, oncologist, bioethicists, legal experts, communications scientists, as well as patient advocated and the patients themselves. By engaging all of the disciplines, we increase the pace and quality of our work, and ensure that the technology is developed in service of the people who will use it.

Even the most entrepreneurial of you will do better if you create a strong team at home and at work.

Finally, maintain your optimism as you solve seemingly intractable problems. Cancer in young people sounds like a very difficult topic to be optimistic about. Similarly, today's world provides headlines that can challenge our resolve and hopefulness. In our new field, the news for cancer patients is better than ever. They are surviving their disease, and reproductive science and medicine is keeping up with their fertility needs. When oncologists and fertility scientists work together, patient needs are meet and can change a devastating diagnosis into life-affirming interventions.

You must meet the challenges you face, from within and from without, with determination and optimism. As Bates graduates, you are equipped to tackle the seemingly intractable problems of our day. We are all counting on you to become the thought leaders and doers of the 21st century. So, create opportunities, use your team, and leverage your optimism, as you leave this place as graduates who will lead our world to a better place. Congratulations to the faculty and parents who have guided you, and congratulations to the Class of 2010. You have a world of possibilities awaiting you.

By: Elizabeth Strout '77

"Life as a human being can be so demanding that few of us have the time or energy to figure out what our life means. That's one reason that novelists such as my classmate and friend Elizabeth Strout are so important. They have the eye and the empathy to capture for us the moments, the fleeting thoughts and actions, that compose the mosaic of a life. And they have the rigor and compassion to give that mosaic a form in which fiction becomes a kind of higher truth.."

-Trustee David L. Foster '77

When I knew a few months back that I was going to stand here and speak to you for just a few minutes, I went out and found different people who had just graduated from college in the last year, and I said, "What is it that you remember from your graduation speech?" And they said, "Nothing." So that was a relief.

So I'm not aiming to speak to you in any way of anything that you will remember. I just want to speak directly to you, right now. What I want to say to you, right now, is that chances are really, really good that you are going to be all right.

In a few minutes the ceremony is over and you won't be college students any more. And I personally have never understood why more is not made, said or written about the trauma of this kind of transition. No wonder people don't remember is said to them today. Your identity is about to change in a really major way, and whether or not you are glad or sad to be leaving Bates today, the fact remains that this is done.

There's a tradition at this school where every year in the winter people go on a very cold day and jump into that puddle called Lake Andrews. On no level when I was a student did that interest me. But it did occur to me today that today is kind of a big-deal Puddle Jump day. And I still say that the chances are that you are going to be all right.

Here's what I advise to you. Be open to your friends because they are the ones who are going to pull you out. Stay especially close to those who make you laugh. Be open to those who seem like they are so different they'll never be friends. They're the ones who will teach you what you can't even imagine you don't know.

Remember that how you live your life matters. I know a doctor who will never come forward on an airplane if they ask if there is a doctor available. She says, "Well, you never know what diseases you might catch. You might also get caught up on some sort of law suit." That's one way to live, and I think that you all have to make your own personal and professional relationships with how you live your life. On the other hand, when I was driving up here just two days ago, we passed by a man who was lying across the other side of the Maine Turnpike on his back, on his back on the grass with his arms spread. It seemed from what we could see that it wasn't an accident but rather probably the man had felt ill and pulled over, and there he was lying. The ambulance had not yet arrived, but what struck me what how many people had already stopped their cars and were running to this man with expressions of earnest and really deep concern.

So really, the main thing that I want to say to you today is that the best part of what waits for you is that liberating prize of life, those remarkable moments when we understand that we are not the most important person in the world. That man on the side of the road is. The person on the airplane suffering is. Our children are, our parents are as they age, our loved ones are. Everyone is the most important person in the world. And I think it is your responsibility to become larger as you get older and not get smaller. Don't become one of those people who end up complaining all the time, whose very face reveals years of accumulated bitterness. That choice is actually yours.

My college roommate and I, when we lived together in Hacker House sophomore year, used to wash our face at night in the bathroom and discuss everything that happened during the day. I can remember how many times she said to me, "Well, Strout, no matter what: You gotta admit, life is too interesting to miss." And she was right: It really is.

So, stay present. Endure it. Celebrate it. In a lot of ways your future won't be at all what you imagine, and in many ways it will be. But go ahead and jump today. Take care of each other, and get ready to be bigger. And remember that life takes time. So look forward to that relief of not being the most important person in the world, and you really will be all right.

Special Thanks to Jay Burns and Phyllis Graber Jensen of Communications and Media Relations and Dean of Students Keith Tannenbaum for always providing photos of Bates throughout the seasons and for making it possible for us to make this book even better each year. In further recognition of Sue Dionne and Ed Plourde of Accounting for keeping all of our budgetary concerns in line, Sports Information Director Andy Walter, Janet Ciummei of Northeast Pro Photo, Shirley Govindasamy and Dot Letourneau of Human Resources, Ed Jawor and Vinny Vincent of Office Services for handling our mail with the utmost organization and care, Harvey Bell of Bell Photography for his excellent senior portraits, our Jostens Plant Consultant Sandy Moses for Overseeing our Publication with an Inscrutable attention to detail, our continually supportive faculty advisor Gene Clough, the students who submitted personal photos, and all those from the greater Bates Community who helped make this edition of the Mirror Yearbook possible.

I would like to further express my gratitude towards my dad, Charles Marshall, for his unbelievable photography skills and for making the cover of this book possible. You have a true gift!To Ryan: it was an incredible pleasure working with you and we could not be where we are today without you. Thank you for everything. Nancy, you became an incredible asset to our club this year and made many contributions with your hard work, beautiful photos, and truly impressive design skills. Jen, we are counting on you to keep this book moving forward strong! I have no doubt that you will continue to do great things for the Mirror. Annie and Emily: Thank you for your hard work, committment, and critical contributions to this book. Qianli: You have some truly unique skills and a great future ahead of you in design. Thank you for making this cover so special and for sharing your talent with us this year. The Mirror is going to need you! And to Maggie: Three years have flown by, and we were able to make this book great while living in two different continents more than once. I know you will put everything into your last book and keep it moving forward in a revolutionary direction. I will miss you a lot! And to the Seniors: Thanks for a great four years! I hope that you can use this book as a way of holding on to some special memories and remarkable adventures. I wish you all the best!
